

Come Fly With Me Nude (CFWMN) is the story of mutual muses Dom Casual & Bella Hagen, two San Francisco artists struggling to find their audience in a world grown increasingly homogenized. In their mind's eye San Francisco looks as it did in the late 50s, complete with "music in the cafes at night and revolution in the air". The Beat Movement is still alive and well; Dom & Bella intend to see to that. Before their meeting, their individual artistic endeavors produced a steady stream of failed gallery exhibits (for Bella) and stage shows (for Dom).

But they find that together they can write and deliver poetry, the likes of which the world has never known. Even their solo artistic endeavors soar as a result of their having found in each other a muse. When a television executive offers them a shot at commercial success, Dom & Bella have wildly different reactions – threatening to destroy their artistic partnership.

The opportunity of commercial success also forces each of them to address personal issues that – whether they realize it or not – fuel their art. Bella never quite confronted the heartache of having to abandon her dream of following in the high-heeled footsteps of her showgirl mother, Sparkle ("the poor thing just didn't get my height!"); Dom has yet to come to terms with his homosexuality.

Ultimately, success gives them the validation and courage to be true to themselves, and yet retain their artistic integrity.
